

Do You Agree?

I read a story a while ago about an older man who was sitting by the tree. A young man came along and said, "Hello, do you live in this town?" The older man said, "Yes". The younger man then said, "I am looking at moving here. Can you tell me what the people that live here are like?" The old man said, "What were the people like in the town you came from?" The young man said, "They were not nice. They talked behind your back. They were angry a lot of the time. They were just not good people." The older man responded and said, "They are the same here."

A little later another young man came along and said the older man, "I am thinking of moving to this town and was wondering what the people of this town are like." The older man responded saying, "What were the people like where you came from?" The young man said, "They were kind, caring people, always ready to help you when you needed help. They were great people!" The old man responded and said, "They are the same here."

You see people are always affected by their perspective and attitudes. It comes down to the way we think and believe. Henry Ford said, "If you think you are a success, you are right. If you think you are a failure, you are also right."

As we get older sometimes we feel people don't care anymore. He or she has become old and not of much use. This is not true. We have a lot of wisdom and are in most cases more valuable to society.

Don't get caught up in what I call 'stinking thinking' because we put that out to the world and then it can become true. People will react differently to you.

Hold your head up high and believe. Think of yourself as great and getting greater!
